

GIVES PLAN FOR SOLVING THE RAILVILS

A. T. THOM PRESENTS RAILROADS' IDEAS WITH REGARD TO MORE EFFECTIVE REGULATION.

URGES CENTRALIZATION

Entire Power of Interstate Regulation Should be Vested in Federal Commission—Favors Federal Incorporation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 25.—Some of the principles which the railroads believe must be included in any just system of regulation were outlined today by the joint congressional investigating committee headed by A. T. Thom, counsel for the railroad executive advisory committee. The main features were:

The entire power and duty of regulation should be in the hands of the national government, except as to matters so essentially local and incidental that they cannot be used to interfere with the efficiency of the service, or the just rights of the carrier.

Federal incorporation.

As a means to accomplish this end, a system of federal incorporation should be provided for, to cover all railroad corporations engaged in interstate and foreign commerce.

Reorganization of the interstate commerce commission and creation of a new federal railroad commission and regional commission of original jurisdiction.

Power to be given the interstate commerce commission to be reduced to sixty days from the time a tariff is filed instead of ten months as at present.

Exclusive power should be in the federal government to supervise the issue of interstate carriers' securities.

Retention of the right of eminent domain by the government, but the right of the states to regulate the use of the railroads for public use should be preserved.

He said it was not the purpose of the railroads to inaugurate a policy of abolition or obstruction of state commissions, and he believed they would continue to occupy a large field of usefulness. But vesting the federal government with the regulating power would make it ore businesslike by removing it from the influence of local politics.

Would Inspire Confidence.

"It would furnish," said Mr. Thom, "a sound basis for the confidence of the public, because more reliance could be put upon the judgment of the whole nation as affecting a matter of national consequence than could be placed in the varying judgment of different local authorities, but it will be necessary to go much further than merely simplifying and concentrating regulation, and concentrating regulation into the system of regulation by the national government those elements of constructiveness and helpfulness which are essential to the growth and efficiency of the instrumentalities of commerce."

WILL ERECT HOMES FOR THE WORKINGMEN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Manitowoc, Nov. 25.—Organization of a housing company to erect homes for workingmen was perfected here yesterday and articles of incorporation will be filed at Manitowoc.

The body contemplates the erection of 100 modern homes to be disposed of to factory employees, and a site covering ten acres of ground adjacent to the industrial center on the west side has been purchased.

The homes will be modern in every particular and will be finished in hardwood and have furnace heat. The Atlantic Nutra Goods Mfg. company and Special Building company of this city are behind the project which solved the housing problem which has retarded the city's growth and development for several years.

The plan is similar to that adopted at Kenosha, Beloit and other cities in the state, where modern homes will be erected at once and total number will exceed one hundred it is expected.

EMBARGO PROPOSALS RESULT IN BEARISH MARKET FOR WHEAT

Slump in European Buying Also Has Its Effect Upon Grain Trade.—Corn and Provisions Firm.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Decidedly increased reports of an embargo on shipments of foodstuffs from the United States have been largely responsible for cutting down wheat prices in the last week, 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 cents a bushel. Values of corn and oats underwent slight declines. Provisions rose.

It seemed to be a clear case of nip and tuck between the bulls and bears in wheat until on Wednesday an announcement came from Washington that Chairman Fitzgerald of the house committee on appropriations was taking energetic measures to push the enactment of an embargo. Each succeeding day afterward, however, witnessed evidence of increased attention to the possibility that the embargo might become a reality.

Apparent absence of any agency in Europe buying tended to give the bears a further advantage in wheat. Big purchases by the British government at Winnipeg did not appear to have been paralleled anywhere else, and were associated more or less with the approaching close of navigation on the great lakes. The curtailment for the time being of foreign buying in the United States was explained in some quarters as due to wholesale economies on the part of foreigners, and also to a lack of ocean vessels not already under charter.

Bullish crop conditions in Argentina did much to make corn and oats relatively firm. Car scarcity, however, operated to restrict business in wheat. Belgian relief buying tended to lift provisions. Lard continued to be the most active packing house commodity.

TROOPS ON BORDER WELL PROTECTED BY BIG MEDICAL CORPS

U. S. Army Develops Very Efficient Medical Organization for Border Troops.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 25.—Within the last five months the most complete medical organization known to the United States army has been developed to care for the 150,000 state and regular troops stationed at border points and in Mexico.

The system includes five base hospitals, located at strategic points in the long stretch of border territory; eight or nine hospitals at other points where troops are stationed, a cantonment hospital at Columbus, N. M., to serve the force on duty in Mexico; and 28 ambulance companies and 41 field hospitals distributed among troops in the field.

The base and camp hospitals afford accommodations for a total of 40,000 patients and have medical and surgical facilities equal to the finest hospitals. Not more than half the beds have been occupied at any one time since the nation's militia strength was called into the federal service, but the room is available in case of need.

Back of this array is the potential organization. A hospital train of ten Pullman cars, with a capacity of 250 patients, has been placed in use to transport patients from the camp hospitals to general military hospitals in various parts of the country, should a campaign in Mexico be undertaken.

The largest hospital at present is the Walter Reed hospital at Washington, D. C., the General Army and Navy hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., the Lettman hospital at St. Francis, Mo., and about 1,200 beds are in the three hospitals at the present time.

In addition a number of army posts have been selected for transformation into general hospitals in case of emergency. This list includes Fort McPherson at Atlanta; Fort Oglethorpe, also in Georgia; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana; and other army stations where barracks are available for hospital purposes.

The medical corps has complete equipment in storage for twenty evacuation hospitals and two base hospitals. An evacuation hospital takes care of 300 patients and a base hospital accommodates 500, so the total reserve equipment ready for use at a moment's notice is sufficient for 6,000 men. Evacuation hospitals are entirely under canvas and are intended for use along an extended line of communication.

Base hospitals now in service are located at Fort Sam Houston, Fort Bliss, Brownsville, Eagle Pass and Nogales. Serving as the camp hospitals located at the following points: Laredo, 120 beds; Del Rio, 75 beds; Marfa, 150 beds; Deming, 25 beds; Douglas, 200 beds; Lordsburg, 200 beds; McAllen, 150 beds, and Fort Clark, 150 beds.

Last July when state troops began arriving at the border, the only army establishments for the care of sick were the post hospitals at Fort Sam, Houston, and Fort Bliss and much smaller places at Laredo and other border points. Practically the entire system of base and camp hospitals has been built since the call on the National Guard was made.

As a result of the selection of methods adopted by the medical corps and steps taken to insure absolute sanitation in border camps, the big command of regulars and militia has set a new health record. From May 1 to October 31 there were only 75 deaths from disease in the force of more than 150,000 and of this small number only 21 deaths were due to infectious diseases.

Typhoid fever was formerly the worst scourge of camp but it has no place among the troops along the Mexican border.

Twelve cases of typhoid developed among the National Guard organizations, where in some instances the disease was introduced by typhus men until after regiments had come to the border. There was not a single case among the 42,000 troops of the regular army engaged in the patrol duty stationed in Mexico with General Pershing's command.

In Spanish-American war days—over a period of eight months in 1898 and 1899—the typhoid epidemic reached the enormous total of 21,000 cases and there were 2,192 deaths from the disease.

TELEPHONE GIRLS IN ROLE OF HEROINES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The young women—Miss Ethel Stenger and Miss Violet Schultz—remained at their post within 100 feet of the burning building, and by the smoke pouring into the building, until assistance had been called from Joliet, four miles away. The loss to the cereal company was estimated at $150,000. GET PEACE MESSAGES FROM POWERS AT WAR

New York, Nov. 25.—Messages of good will from the chancelleries of three of Europe's warring powers were read at a dinner given here Friday by the league to enforce peace.

The purpose of the banquet was to consider a program for a permanent league of nations at the close of the great conflict.

Approval of the principle proposed by Aristide Briand, premier of France; Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg of Germany; and Viscount Grey, great Britain's secretary of state for foreign affairs, in messages which were read.

France For Peace.

Premier Briand's message said: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication, the contents of which I have noted with lively interest. In basing my effort on fundamental principles of respect for the rights and wishes of the various people of the world, you are certain of being on common ground with the countries who, in the present crisis, are giving their blood and their resources without counting the cost, to save the independence of the nations.

"I recollect that I have already said public utterances must have already made it clear that I sincerely desire to see a league of nations formed and made effective by the future peace of the world after this conflict is over. I regard this as the best, if not the only, prospect of preserving treaties and of saving the world from aggression."

Sent Speech Quotations.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg sent as his message extracts from a speech he delivered Nov. 19, before the Reichstag, which follows:

"We never concealed our doubts with regard to the question whether peace could be permanently guaranteed by such international organizations as arbitration courts. I shall, however, at this place, not discuss the theoretical aspects of the problem, but only the practical one at the time of the conclusion of peace from the point of view of facts define our position with regard to this question. When at, and after the end of the war, the world will become fully conscious of its horrifying destruction of life and property, then through the whole of mankind will ring a cry for peace and for understanding."

which, as far as lies in human power, shall avoid the return of such a monstrous catastrophe. This cry will be so powerful and so justified that it will lead to some result. Germany will honestly co-operate in the examination of every endeavor to find a practical solution of the question, and will collaborate to make its realization possible.

Lord Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, also sent a message. William Howard Taft, president of the league, who presided at the dinner, the following:

"Those working here on your lines send heartfelt sympathy with and best wishes for your league's efforts."

William J. Stone, of Missouri.

TWO MEN IN COURT
ON HOLD-UP CHARGE

Chris. Rother Robbed Last Night Near Blamarch Hotel—Police Take

Two Into Custody

Otto "Smoky" Palmeter and Thomas Kelly were this morning arraigned in municipal court before Judge Maxfield on a charge of holding up Chris. Rother and taking from him a watch and change amounting to about three dollars.

Rother reported he was coming out of the Blamarch hotel shortly after eleven o'clock last night, when two men jumped upon him from the alleyway between the hotel and a live-in barn next door. He was dragged into the darkness there and was relieved of the watch and money. He managed to hit one of the men over the head with a whiskey bottle, the thud, auditory for the moment, loosened his hold and Rother escaped.

George Lempe, who lives at the hotel, heard the noise, and looking out the window saw the struggling figures. He hurried down and against the faint light of the sky saw the two men running back from the street. He had recognized the men's voices and followed them to the alley.

"Smoky's" got the watch," said Kelly. "I don't know anything about it. I'm going home to bed." Lempe called the police at once, and Palmeter was arrested just as he was entering his rooming house. He claimed that he had not taken the watch, but that someone had given it to him to plant.

The officers later saw the watch buried next to the sidewalk at the scene of the hold-up.

The men this morning asked for an examination and the case was postponed over until Monday. Palmeter already has a court record.

PLENTY OF THRILLS
FOR SOLDIER'S WIFE

Mrs. Lorrain T. Richardson Has Seen

Campaign Service in Philippines

—Was in "Frisco Quake"

There have been thrills and hardship for Mrs. Lorrain T. Richardson, wife of Brigadier General Richardson, a native of Janesville, commander of the Wisconsin troops at San Antonio, Texas, during their eighteen years of married life. On the night of their wedding General Richardson was called away to put down an insurrection in the Philippines.

Mrs. Richardson was with her husband when he was in the Philippines, and she has seen some of the wildest parts of islands where white women had never been before. Later Mrs. Richardson went to the Philippines with her nine-month-old baby. Her second baby was born in a hospital in Manila. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson were in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake which occurred during their wedding anniversary, and a few days later their third baby was born and General Richardson was called away to deal with a disturbance in Alaska.

While her husband has been at the border, Mrs. Richardson has remained at home, on Morrison street in Madison. She will not be with her husband for Thanksgiving dinner and it may be that she will pass the holidays without seeing him. But she is used to being a soldier's wife by this time.

She is a slim, blonde, pleasant-looking woman who looks ridiculously young to be the mother of the seventeen-year-old "war baby" whose name is Marie Caroline Richardson. Yet some of the things that Mrs. Richardson has gone through since she married the general were not at all suited to slimmess and pinkness.

Mrs. Richardson is the mother of three daughters, Marie Caroline, born during the war in the Philippines; Florence Marshall, born at Manila, and Lorraine Thompson, born in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake. She has been with her husband practically all the time, in the wildest of the Philippine islands, where no white women had ever been before.

She has been with her husband made up of eight newly married couples—none of whom had been married more than a month, penetrated.

General Lorrain T. Richardson has been in the United States Army since he graduated from West Point about eighteen years ago. He was born in Janesville and went to the public schools here. Recently he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general, and has been on the border ever since the Mexican trouble began, while his wife and daughters have been living in Madison for the last eighteen months.

Before coming to Madison, General Richardson was captain in the regular army, and came to Madison as inspector instructor of the United States Army.

Mrs. Richardson tells many thrilling tales about her experiences as the wife of a soldier. She herself has had several narrow escapes, one of which she told yesterday afternoon. She was on the ground in what threatened to be an insurrection in the market place of one of the wildest of the islands, surrounded by excited natives who could not get up, and was forced to lie on the ground with a gleaming knife held by one of the natives, pointed straight at her. Fortunately the excitement was put down and Mrs. Richardson was carried to safety.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A traveler through a dusty road
Strewed acorns on the sea;
And one took root and sprouted up
And grew into a tree.
Love sought its share, at evening time,
To bask beneath its early vows,
And age was pleased, in lent of noon,
To bask beneath its boughs;
The dourhouse loved its dangling twigs.

The birds' sweet music bore;
It stood a glory in its place,
A blessing ever more.

A little stream had lost its way
Amid the grass and fern;
A passing stranger scooped a well
Where weary men might turn;
He waited it in, and hung with care
At ladle, at the brink;
He thought not of the deed he did,
But judged that toll might drink.
He passed again, and the well,
By summer never dried,
Had couched ten thousand parching
tongues
And saved a life beside.

A dreamer dropped a random thought;
'Twas old, and yet 'twas new;
A simple fancy of the brain,
But strong in being true.
It shone upon a genial mind,
And lo! its light became
A lamp of life, a beacon ray.
A monitor flame.
The thought was small; its issue great;
It watched on the hill,
To show its radiance far adown,
And cheer the valley still!

A nameless man, amid a crowd
That thronged the daily mart,
Let fall a word of hope and love,
Unstudied, from his heart.
At once upon the tumult thrown,
A transitory breath—
It roused a brother from the dust,
It saved a soul from death.
O gentle O gentle O word of love,
O thought at random cast!
Ye were but little at the first,
But mighty at the last.
—Charles Mackay.

Each verse of this choice little poem suggests a traveler who made the journey pleasant for fellow wayfarers by some thoughtful deed of kindness. The list includes only four classes of workers, but there are many others for this good world in which we live is full of helpful people. Some one said, a long time ago, that we never know how many friends we have until calamity overtakes us, or some great burden of sorrow oppresses us. The statement is true, and while every life is busy with care and responsibility, the great heart of humanity is sympathetic and always ready to respond to the touch of suffering.

It is comforting to believe when our friends leave us, that they are safely housed in some mansion beyond the border in the land from which no traveler has ever returned, but faith and hope are less tangible than the crisp of a hand or the voice of a friend, and so it comes to pass that human sympathy is always appreciated.

But the sentiment expressed in the little poem touches a broader field than sympathy. It has to do with thinking, feeling and doing, with words which shall live and bless humanity for generations yet unborn. The heart of the American people is generous. It is very close to the surface, and in times of dire need, and great disasters, it responds to the touch of need spontaneously. It is also prone to forget and unless advantage is taken of the flood tide it is difficult to arouse public sentiment. The cyclone sufferer appeals to us the day after the storm, but a month later he is likely to be forgotten.

There is a difference between sentiment and philanthropy. The former appeals to our emotional nature and prompts us to sympathize with people in trouble and sorrow. It is a product of the heart. Divinely inspired, and without it the journey of life would be a dreary waste.

Philanthropy springs from the same life-giving fountain, but the brain and mind contribute to its work. The field is a broader field, and accomplishment is the product of time and faithful service. The man who plants a tree, or wells up a spring, for the benefit of humanity is a philanthropist.

Sympathy is as old as the race, but philanthropy is a product of Christian civilization. We are privileged to live in the most philanthropic age which the world has known, and in a land which has no rival in philanthropic work.

Every movement which has for its object the betterment of humanity is a philanthropic movement. This principle is the basis of all reforms, and while some of them may be visionary and impractical, the spirit back of them is the right kind of spirit.

The wave of prohibition now sweeping over the land is likely to become a tidal wave, and may be the issue of the next national campaign. When the city of Dordrecht in the land, adopts the dry standard, it means more than sentiment, and the philanthropic workers, all over the country, who have worked and prayed for success, have occasion to rejoice.

We are approaching the national Thanksgiving anniversary, and while the old world is still engaged in the most brutal war in history, sacrificing millions of lives and billions of treasure, and blunting moral sensibilities, we are at peace with all mankind, and the moral uplift of the people is recognized as of supreme importance.

The exciting campaign through which we recently passed, where public sentiment was so evenly divided that only a small margin rewarded the victor, has left no scars which time will not speedily heal, because we are a nation of one people, possessed of peace and purpose.

The statement is often made that we inherit our religious and political creeds, and it is largely true, yet the fact remains that the great philanthropies of life are unhindered by creeds of any kind, and in this land we stand on the broad platform of a common brotherhood.

A congress of religions was held at the world's fair in Chicago some years ago, and representatives from all nations were in attendance. Among the speakers was a disciple of Buddha from India. He held in his hand an apple and said, "In this country you call this an apple; in my country I call it something else, and every land has a name for it, but it is always the same apple. That is true of religion, whatever may be its name."

That's the principle which applies to philanthropy. It interests all kinds of people and all kinds of workers, but the God whom all the people of this country recognize and in Whom they believe.

There will be some vacant chairs at the Thanksgiving board next Thursday, and some sad hearts. There will be some homes where the heavy hand of misfortune has wrought havoc and ruin, and others where poverty and suffering have blighted the year and where Thanksgiving day may seem like a travesty. Sympathy, more than philanthropy, will be in demand, and the call to exercise it is universal. Here is a little song of thankfulness, found in Zion's Herald, which all of us might adopt:

I thank Thee, Lord, for the blue of Thy sky,
For the green of Thy woods and fields;
For the river that ripples and sparkles by,
And the harvest the brown earth yields.
For the birds that sing, and the flowers that bloom,
—And the breath of the cooling breeze—
Thou hast made them all so beautiful.
I thank Thee, Lord, for these!

I thank Thee, Lord, for a brain to think,
And a will to do and dare;
For a heart which may give my fellow man
A love that is strong and true;
For a spirit that is but the breath of God.
And is new when the world is old—
I yield them all to Thyself, dear Lord,
They are Thine to have and hold.

Only use them, Lord, in Thy shaping hand
For an end that Thine eye can see,
As day by day Thou art fashioning
Thy child to be more like Thee.
Let thine image shine from my faithful heart
As a light over life's rough way,
That others may find it an easier path,
And be led to a perfect day.

OF MINERAL WATER
VALUED AT MILLIONWisconsin Ranks First as to Total
Worth of Mineral and Medicinal Springs' Output.

The state of Wisconsin ranked first in total value of production of mineral waters and in value of table waters in 1915, sixth in value of medicinal waters, eighth in number of commercial springs, and second in consumption of mineral water for manufacture of soft drinks. This record reflects chiefly the great activity of several large producers of moderate-priced table waters.

These facts are taken from a government bulletin on mineral waters in 1915, issued by the United States geological survey, received from Washington this week.

Though the quantity of mineral waters bottled and sold in Wisconsin was 6 percent less than that bottled and sold in 1914, its value was 75 percent greater because of a general rise in the price of several waters. The average price per gallon was double that in 1914. Where the price in 1914 was 11 cents, in 1915 it was 22 cents. The latter year there were 38 commercial springs in operation—one more than in 1914. The quantity sold was 4,861,734 gallons, of the value of $1,051,406, as against 5,145,452 gallons in 1914, of the value of $588,373. About 800,000 gallons of mineral water also was used in the manufacture of soft drinks.

The state of New York led in number of commercial springs and in quantity of mineral water sold, and was second to Wisconsin in total value of production and in value of table waters. The value of medicinal waters produced in Wisconsin last year was $81,395, and of table waters $970,010, or a total as stated of $1,051,406. Wisconsin was the only state whose total production was valued at more than $1,000,000. The total value of the output exceeded $500,000 only in Wisconsin, New York and California, and these three states produced 31 percent of the total quantity and 45 percent of the total value of domestic mineral waters marketed in 1915.

In the United States last year 612 commercial springs were operated; the quantity of mineral waters sold aggregated 52,113,603 gallons, valued at $2,337,794, at an average price of ten cents per gallon. The statistics of production in the United States during the last five years indicate a gradual decline in quantity sold since 1911; Wisconsin, however, last year enjoyed an increase of $463,032 over 1914 in the value of its product sold. This is equivalent to a gain of 79 percent.

In this state, two resorts accommodated about 1,500 guests, and one mineral water bathing establishment was operated at springs last year. One spring temporarily idle in 1914 was productive in 1915. The 36 springs reporting production were located in the following places: Green Bay, Wisconsin, Oconto, Ashland, Oconto, Chippewa Falls, Wausau, Sheboygan, Waupaca, Darlington, Plover, Prairie du Chien, Menomonie Falls, Fontana, Oshkosh, Marshfield, Wausau, Lake Geneva, Madison, Fusselsville (near Menomonie Falls), Cooper Station (Racine county).

URGES PAVED ROAD ON STATE BOUNDARY

BERGEN MAN URGES CONCRETE
HIGHWAY TO MARK WISCONSIN-
ILLINOIS LINE.

CALLS ON LOCAL MEN

Efforts Will Be Taken to Secure Indorsement of Proposition By the Janesville Commercial Club.

Agitation is now being made for the construction of a cement paved highway on the Wisconsin-Illinois boundary line connecting Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river. H. S. Anderson of Bergen, Wis., who is interested in the movement, is in Janesville today and called on Secretary Peter V. Kuhn of the Commercial club and on George S. Parker, chairman of the club's good roads committee. Mr. Anderson hopes to secure the club's indorsement of the proposal. The matter may be brought up at the directors' meeting on Monday.

By action of the legislature of Illinois and Wisconsin will be necessary if the plan is carried out. Efforts will be made to have the matter taken up both at Madison and Springfield. The Wisconsin legislature is now in session and it is proposed to secure petitions signed by from ten to fifteen thousands taxpayers from the state in favor of the project for a paved highway.

The matter of cost of construction, it is estimated by the friends of the project, will not be excessive. It might be divided up as follows, covering a three year period: each state to pay one-quarter of the expense, the counties bordering the state line one-quarter and the townships bordering the line on either side one-eighth. It is estimated that the expense for building a stretch of 150 miles would amount to $1,050,000.

At the present time the state line road is without exception the worst road in the state, declared Mr. Anderson. "We have been pulling automobiles out of the mud all last week. It should be a paved highway, and if it was it would take care of an immense amount of traffic going east and west. It would be short route to Chicago, as it would connect with the Lake Shore Drive at Kenosha. It would be an appropriate work for the two states to undertake."

The scheme for a system of paved roads as marking state boundary lines would be worked out in the future, according to Mr. Anderson, and when such roads could be used as main highways. It is the intention to have the petitions placed in circulation as soon as possible in order that the public feeling for the project may be demonstrated to the state legislatures.

Mr. Anderson has already taken up the proposal with the state highway engineer. He believes that they will take a favorable attitude on the proposition. It is the plan to place the matter before the legislatures simultaneously and at the coming sessions if possible.

GEN. CHARLES KING TO INSPECT COMPANY EARLY IN DECEMBER

Captain Hans Jaeke Receives Word That Noted Soldier and Writer Will Be Here Shortly.

General Charles King, U. S. A., retired, who is acting as an inspector of the Wisconsin national guard for the United States army, will inspect the Second Separate Company, located here, sometime early in December. This was the order received by Captain Hans Jaeke, commander of the company, in a letter from General King. The exact date has not been fixed but it will probably be Tuesday or Friday next of the week following Thanksgiving.

Perhaps there is no regular army officer either on the active or retired list who has been so actively identified with military matters as General King. Acting as a boy orderly for his father, the late General Rufus King, commander of a brigade and later a division in the civil war, General King was appointed to West Point by President Lincoln, graduated with honors and served, until incapacitated by wounds, in the cavalry branch of the regular service all through the stirring Indian troubles in Arizona and the Dakotas.

While on the retired list he acted as commander of the University battalion at Madison for several years, was later Adjutant General of the state, United States Inspector of armaments, Inspector General of Wisconsin militia, returned to active service during the war with Spain and made brigadier general and placed in command of a western brigade that was sent to the Philippines and later retired as Brigadier General and assigned to the Wisconsin military units.

General King has been a tireless worker in perfecting the military units of the Wisconsin national guard, a rigid drill master, a wise advisor and an excellent inspector and his assignment to inspect the Janesville company is an especial honor to the company and its members. He has been a prolific writer of war stories and his tales which have appeared in book form and several of which have been dramatized, are found on practically every public library shelf.

As soon as the exact date for his arrival in Janesville is learned plans will be made for his entertainment. It is expected the Commercial club will act as hosts and an informal dinner in his honor at one of the hotels and it has been suggested that the Boy Scout troops of the city may be asked to act as his escort from the hotel to the company's armory on East Milwaukee street.

After the inspection it is planned to hold a general reception at the armory at which members of the G. A. R., Women's Relief Corps, Patriotic societies, United Spanish War veterans, former members of the Wisconsin national guard, particularly the Janesville companies which were in the service when General King was most actively connected with the state guard and others will be invited. The officers' room and the enlisted men's quarters at the armory are now being furnished for the comfort of the members of the company. Shaded arched windows, the windows, rugs laid on the floor, pictures hung, the furniture and chairs being ordered as well as a large number of camp chairs for the accommodation of visitors who desire to watch the drills.

To prepare for the inspection Captain Jaeke is holding two drills weekly. Each Tuesday and Friday evening the members of the company turn out for these in goodly numbers and are working hard to be able to show progress in the school of the soldier. In regular army drill drill sergeant takes charge of the drill during a part of each evening and later aids the officers in correcting minor mistakes of the soldiers. The armory is growing and the committee in charge of raising it, while they have not reached all who might desire to contribute, would be glad to have donations mailed to Carl Buchholz, chairman. The rooms have been offered to the veterans of the G. A. R. as club rooms and as soon as arrangements will be available for their afternoon and evening gatherings.

Notice: Regular meeting of the Modern Woodmen of American, Monday evening. Please come. Con. Baker, secretary.

STUDENT RAID CASE AGAIN POSTPONED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Nov. 25.—The student riot cases which were scheduled to come up in circuit court before Judge Stevens this morning, were continued until the January term on a motion of District Attorney Harry Southworth.

While this is a delay in the trial of the cases, it is an indication, according to Charles H. Cronhart, that it is the intention of the district attorney's office to ultimately drop the cases. The delay, it is stated, is occasioned by reason of the fact that while the cases are pending, the students will be kept on their good behavior.

The theme of "Experience," which William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present at the Grand Rockford, for five performances,
Thursday matinee and night Nov. 30,
Friday night Dec. 1st, and Saturday matinee and night Dec. 2nd, is the ever new story, yet as old as the world itself, of "Experience." It is the story of Youth, his temptations, his yearnings, hopes, ambitions, tragedies, reverses and successes; all of Youth's impulsive passions and moods. "Experience" is an intensely human story and never lags in interest, the critics say, and is so fascinatingly unfolded that one enjoys the pleasure of anticipation to the fullest extent, awaiting each new twist in the story. There is a delightful musical accompaniment throughout the play and the latest songs are heard and the newest dances are given. The regular advance opens at the Grand on Monday, Nov. 27th. Mail orders now

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

"The Princess Pat"
"The Princess Pat," Henry Blossom
and Victor Herbert's latest comic opera triumph, which reigned queen of Broadway for many months last season and later duplicated its success at the Park Square theatre, Boston, comes to Myers theatre Sunday night, November 26th, direct from the Davidson theatre, Milwaukee, after a successful engagement of two months at the Garlick theatre, Chicago, with practically its original cast
of principals, ensemble and orchestra.
It is one of the very, very rare
comic operas which are at once comic and operatic. The book and lyrics are in Mr. Blossom's best vein, with pith and point and the comedy, while Mr. Herbert's music not only excels
the best he put into "Mlle. Modiste,"
"The Red Mill" and "The Prima Donna," but in one or two of the concert numbers approaches the perfection of the distinction of his grand opera, "Na-toma" and "Madeline." Add to these facts the introduction of principals and ensemble that are singing as well as looking beautiful and you have the reason for the success of "The Princess Pat."

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

Newest Plays by Jack Bessey.
It is seldom that any stock company gives its patrons the rare treat that Mr. Bessey has arranged for Janesville through the production by the Bessey players of a series of the biggest successes of the day at regular stock prices. It has been announced for presentation at the New Myers theatre by superhuman efforts and a lavish expenditure of money by Mr. Bessey. But it has too good for his patrons and he is certainly proving his faith in their loyalty. The first of these wonderful offerings is "Kick In" starting Monday night. This play has only recently been released for stock and is probably one of the highest royalty plays ever presented in stock. It is a cross play with cross characters, and the New York police force for its characters with the police court and the haunts of the underworld for its setting, while it deals with a theme that other writers have exploited before, no one has made such an interesting evening's entertainment or handled the subject in such a master-ly manner as Mr. William F. Mr.
Bessey probably knows more of the life of the denizens of the lower strata than any living author and he has painted a word picture that carries conviction to all who see it. It is stimulating and mingling with the dips, guns and even murderers without a fear of being contaminated by them or even being summoned to appear before the police. Yet one leaves the theatre feeling that they have spent the evening in another world from the one they are accustomed to.

The entire strength of the Jack Bessey Players cast is necessary for its presentation of "Kick In" and each member of the company appearing in a role that suits them as though it were written especially for their peculiar talents. As per the usual custom ladies will be admitted free Monday night. Tuesday night and his feature play of the week, "A Pair of Sixes." Seats now on sale.

CONCERT FAVORITES
ON LECTURE COURSE.

The first number on the People's Popular Priced Lecture course will be given Tuesday afternoon and evening in the Carnegie M. E. church. The Concert Favorites present a high class program consisting of solos, duets, trios, piano songs, readings
and impersonations; folk and character songs; and a variety of other features.

A special matinee will be given at 4:15 o'clock and the evening program will start at 8:15. Both programs will be different.

The entire program presented by the Concert Favorites is ideal in that it is given by artists of talent and culture, who know how to blend seriousness and fun, and to set a standard for entertainments that has made these three young ladies favorites of hundreds of audiences.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

The Reason.
Ah, Lady, while this lyric life
I stand amidst a red hot strife,
I would you knew what did inspire
These songs of graces sweeter;
And knew that when I sing of you
And glorify your beauty,
"The Reason," I only do
My daily duty.

Though I immortalize, betimes,
The very tilt your nose;
Though I compare in double rhymes
Your color to the rose;
And though, my fair, love's very laws
Bid me thus sing a maid to,
I sing—oh, but a truth—because My dear, I'm paid to.

Oh, I am thrall to every wile,
To all your charms and graces;
You have my own, what I would style
The loveliest of faces.

Aye, it is so and yet—and yet—
These lines my thought engages,
Because you color them thus I get My weekly wages!

Neglecting the Cigarettes at Home.
Mrs. Kate Signers was among the number attending the Y. C. T. U. convention at Penn's Grove, Wednesday.—Elmer (N. J.) Times.

Two things are difficult. For a small man to get a large order of water without musing in it and for one girl to pass another without assessing her apparel.

It is pathetic. You see nice young girls with pretty, fluffy clothes, delicious giggles, the most girlish manners—everything but the right sort of face.

The average girl has two horrors;
that other girls think her fat and that young men think her thin.

A MOMENT WITH THE MUSE

Pigskin Princesses.
Oh, why does there assemble at football when a game is the air, fair dames that do surely resemble the fairest of all of the fair? We know not the reason that we are quite certain to see, when we go, girls fairer than Juno or Hebe; so help me, dear reader, it's so.

Fair frills have we seen so alluring they'd ruin your heart with a smile, as fair as you've noticed in touring for many and many a mile. But none that we ever remember are half so divine as the sort one sees at the games in November, where heroes of pigskin court. Oh, be it the air or the season; oh, be it the season or air, whatever or whence is the reason, these dames are exceedingly there.

On Being Sold.
Life was quite a jolly racket in the days when knights were bold, when there'd an imprisoned damsel (though the nights were very cold) they would dash up to the tower where the lady's pious cries and her tears and plaintiff gestures dim-

med with tears, their gallant eyes,
They would somehow scale the tower (they'd no elevators then. If a riot had they could use them, they'd no elevator men.) In their strong arms they would lift her to the saddle at their side and the lady feeling grateful soon became their blooming bride.
It is real, quite improving, just to read of long ago you may possibly discover things you didn't ever know.
They were nifty with their lances
and they often used to say, "Gee,
only begged six dragons, was off my feed today." Any day they didn't rescue some swell damsel from a tower they'd not eat a bite of supper
when old knightdom was in flower.
They could step along a few, though of course that's not surprising, they had nothing else to do. And they had so many chances why the women of today wouldn't let you be their hero in so bold and free a way.
All that sort of thing they used to do in old romantic tales was in fact, and hardly worth it please our modern trails. Seize one boldly, go ahead now, as they did in days of old—boldness now is not so easy as it was when knights were bold.

LOUIS LUCKY.

—Even the man who dodges responsibility all his life has to go to his own funeral. —Prof. Simp.

The very next day after he had bought a diploma for the diploma from the City of Chicago College of Pharmacy Louis Lucky got a job as clerk in Pestle's Pharmacy at $2.40
a week with a promise of possible advancement.

The very next hour after he had been taken on, a celluloid collar factory down the street caught fire and Mr. Pestle ran out to help watch it, leaving the store in charge of Louis.

The very next moment after that,
a small thin man with black shoes entered with a prescription and handed it to Louis. The prescription walled for, "Qxt. a and a half; half pinto lpd; wxy; one dash."
"The poor guy don't look well, I better give him some," thought Louis as he scratched his head over the prescription.

And he poured some spirits of womica and some aromatic acid together.

"It don't look like the right color," complained the thin man.
"Well, I ain't finished yet," said Louis craftily. And he climbed up to the top shelf and coaxed out the bottle by one of "My mother told me I must take this one," when the finger pointed to a bottle of dynamited pebble. He poured squid measureful into the mixture and immediately there was a terrific explosion which blew out the front of the store and brought the fickle crowd that had been watching the fire.

"Shall I take it with me or have it sent?" asked the thin man timidly.
But Louis was three hundred feet
in the air and still ascending.
